Portland Program April 9, 2004

Working Across Cultures: The Critical Competencies You Need to Stay Relevant and Effective in a Global Economy Panel Moderated by David Drake, PhD

Training and development professionals often find themselves in the middle of the massive changes brought on by globalization: the rapid rise of the Internet as a learning tool, the far-reaching shift to large-scale outsourcing and the emergence of China and India as major economic players, and the increasing diversity within our own region and country.

What are the skills and competencies you will need to stay competitive and effective in your work as a training and development professional? We invite you to join us for an exciting panel of regional experts who will lead a discussion on these important issues. Our featured panelists are:

The panel will be moderated by David Drake, PhD, President of Catalyst Communications, Portland, OR (ddrake@catalst.com).

Janet Bennett, PhD
Executive Director, Intercultural Communication Institute
Portland, OR

T. Glen Sebera, MA
Principal, Renaissance Consulting Group
glen@recongrop.com

The session will include presentations by the panelists, time for Q&A, small group discussions, and some personal reflection and action-planning.

Baruti Atharee
Regional Director, Diversity Initiatives, Providence Health System

Fundamentals of Training

The Cascadia Chapter presents our popular Fundamentals of Training series. We have reviewed and revised all the sessions to provide you the latest information on these topics. The sessions have been re-designed and are specially geared towards those new

Hundreds of Oregon and southwest Washington professionals have built their training skills in this hands-on 5-session series. If you are new to the training profession or just wish a refresher in certain skill areas, then this series is for you!

Fundamentals of Training is offered cooperatively by ASTD-Cascadia Chapter and Portland State University (PSU) School of Extended Studies. The lead instructor for this course is Glen Fahs, Adjunct Faculty, PSU. Each session is 3 hours in length and will be facilitated by a highly skilled instructor for that specific session. You can register for each session separately or for the entire series.

For registration details and information on all of our programs, please contact Kathleen Bergquist at 503-579-1552 or visit www.astdcascadia.org.
